Frequently Asked Questions

What is Remote Learning (RL)?

Remote learning takes place online and utilizes cloud-enabled technology to deliver education. Flexible schedules allow students learn at their own pace through self-directed activities and assignments, and live web-based discussions offer the opportunity for students to interact with their peers and instructors from the convenience of their own homes.

What is On-Demand Remote Learning?

On-demand learning utilizes the same cloud-based infrastructure as remote learning to accommodate the immediate need for education. Self-paced lessons and a wide variety of resources are easily accessible and available 24/7.

What is Face-2-Face (F2F) Learning?

Face-to-face is the traditional method of instruction where students attend a course at a brick and mortar school.

What do I need to take RL courses?

Register for the courses via https://afsoc.blackboard.com/

Most of our content is accessible from either government or commercial Internet. To join live web-based sessions or view YouTube videos, commercial internet is required. You will need a device (laptop, smartphone, desktop, tablet) with a microphone and a camera.

What systems does USAFSOS use for RL?

USAFSOS's primary learning management system is Blackboard Learn and the full suite of complementary tools and programs to include Blackboard Collaborate. The Blackboard Collaborate platform offers an immersive educational experience and human interaction through live web-based instruction from your personal device.

In addition, USAFSOS stores FOUO courseware on our Intelink page:
